

Regional Food Systems Working Group

Value Chain
Partnerships

An Iowa-Based Network for Food and Agriculture Working Groups

Our Mission

To support education, conduct research and facilitate partnership to increase investment and support of community-based, sustainable and environmentally responsible regional food enterprises.

Our Objectives

Identify key elements found in specific geographical areas that create a vibrant and sustainable food system

Work with leaders in food businesses to identify key elements that are not yet developed

Help identify and measure key changes in different regions to determine whether there is positive change

Develop and implement a continuous learning process across Iowa to determine what it takes to make a regional food system more vibrant and sustainable

Our Background

The Regional Food Systems Working Group is part of Value Chain Partnerships led by the Leopold Center for Sustainable Agriculture, with partners from Iowa State University and Practical Farmers of Iowa. The group supports farmer-led food and fiber enterprises that follow sustainable practices.
